SENATE CONFIRMS KAGAN FOR SUPREME COURT

Tribune Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON The Senate confirmed Elena Kagan as the nation's 112th justice of the U.S. Supreme Court on Thursday in a largely partisan 63-37 vote.

Kagan, 50, the U.S. solicitor general, replaces the retired Justice John Paul Stevens. Once she is sworn into office, the Supreme Court will include for the first time in history three sitting female justices. She will become the youngest justice to join the court since Clarence Thomas in 1991. After three days of debate on the Senate floor, five Republicans crossed party lines to vote for Kagan, with one Democrat opposing her.

The outcome in the Senate had long been expected because of the substantial Democratic majority and the inability of Republicans to identify a vulnerability in her record that would spur opposition beyond the ranks of the GOP and conservative interest groups.

Kagan, however, faced serious questions from Republicans about her lack of judicial and courtroom experience. Before joining the Obama administration last year as its top advocate before the Supreme Court, Kagan spent most of her career in academia. She served as dean of Harvard Law School and spent time during the 1990s as a policy adviser in the Clinton White House.

Her work in Democratic administrations sparked worries among Republicans that she would view the law through a political prism rather than approach cases objectively. Kagan also was criticized for her efforts as dean of Harvard Law to bar military recruiters from using career services resources at the school over opposition to the Pentagon's "don't ask, don't tell" policy toward gay and lesbian soldiers.

In the end, none of the concerns was enough to torpedo the nomination. But Kagan became the third consecutive high court pick to receive fewer than a three-fourths majority in the Senate, a trend that suggests that, in a departure from historical practice, the nominations are becoming increasingly politicized and that nominees now are being treated like a piece of legislation.

On deck

Some of the major cases the Supreme Court has agreed to hear during its 2010-11 term:

VIOLENT VIDEO GAMES

Whether a California law banning the sale and rental of violent video games to minors violated constitutional free-speech rights.

ANTI-GAY PROTESTS AT MILITARY FUNERALS

Whether constitutional free-speech rights protected anti-gay protests by members of a Kansas church at funerals for U.S. military members killed in Iraq.

BUSINESS IMMIGRATION LAW IN ARIZONA

Whether business, civil rights and immigration groups can succeed in their legal challenge to an Arizona law that punishes employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants.

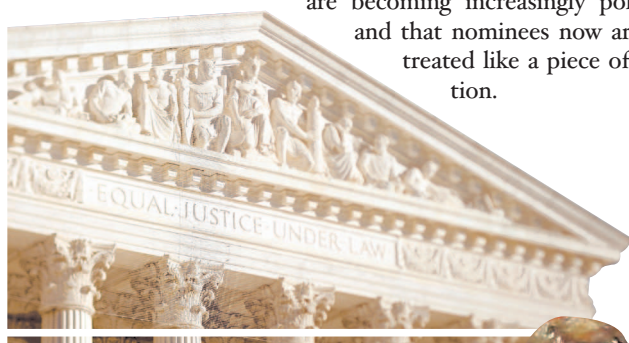

DNA TEST OF DEATH-ROW INMATE WHO SAYS HE IS INNOCENT

Whether a Texas death-row inmate can use a civil rights law to require that the state test DNA evidence he says could prove his innocence in a triple murder.

Bravo to ordinary Twitter celebrity

Please, everybody on your feet. Seriously, it's important.

Just for a minute, put your hands together in a rowdy round of applause. Add some wolf whistles and fist pumps if you're able. This standing ovation is owed to one young man.

His name is Steven Holmes, he is based in the U.K. and this week he became the first and only person Kanye West was following on Twitter.

But that's not why we're clapping. We're celebrating Holmes' reaction to his brush with fame: "Before this weekend I thought it would be cool to have a celebrity following me on Twitter, but now I think it's really not worth it," Holmes told the Coventry Telegraph. Holmes solidified his unorthodox position through his now white-hot Twitter account, according to MTV. "I won't be speaking to anybody else; surprisingly not everyone wants to be famous," the teen tweeted. "That's all I'm saying—peace out x."

Peace out, indeed.

If I didn't think Holmes would rebuff me as a possible false follower, I would Twitter trail this man to the ends of the Earth. That's how much I respect his ability to recognize, and rebuff, the ridiculous fame seemingly bestowed on anybody these days, from a baby singing "Single Ladies" to a grown man squealing like a sow over double rainbows.

Unlike many of his insta-celebrity peers, Holmes realized he had done absolutely nothing to earn adulation, and having people panting after him for no good reason rings more hollow than the inside of Lindsay Lohan's head.

If only others in the pop spotlight could be so self-aware.

Perhaps that would have stopped Laurence Fishburne's daughter, who this week released a hard-core sex tape in the hopes it would lead her to fame faster than name-dropping her famous father or, I dunno, taking some acting classes.

"I've watched how successful Kim Kardashian became, and I think a lot of it was due to the release of her sex tape," Montana Fishburne reasoned about her freaky footage, according to TMZ.

The camera-crazed Salahis also would benefit from a hint of Holmes. This week, the alleged White House state dinner crashers came out of exile to tout their ill-begotten role on "The Real Housewives of D.C." Naturally, it didn't take long for them to sop up even more undeserved limelight with Michaela Salahi's whining that Whoopi Goldberg lobbed f-bombs at her backstage at "The View."

Sigh.

Holmes may not want fame, but compared with these pop-culture fools, he is my hero.

If I had my way, we would keep clapping all day. West, in retrospect, was wise to follow his tweets.

Now if only others would follow his example.

THIS IS AN AD FOR A BURRITO.

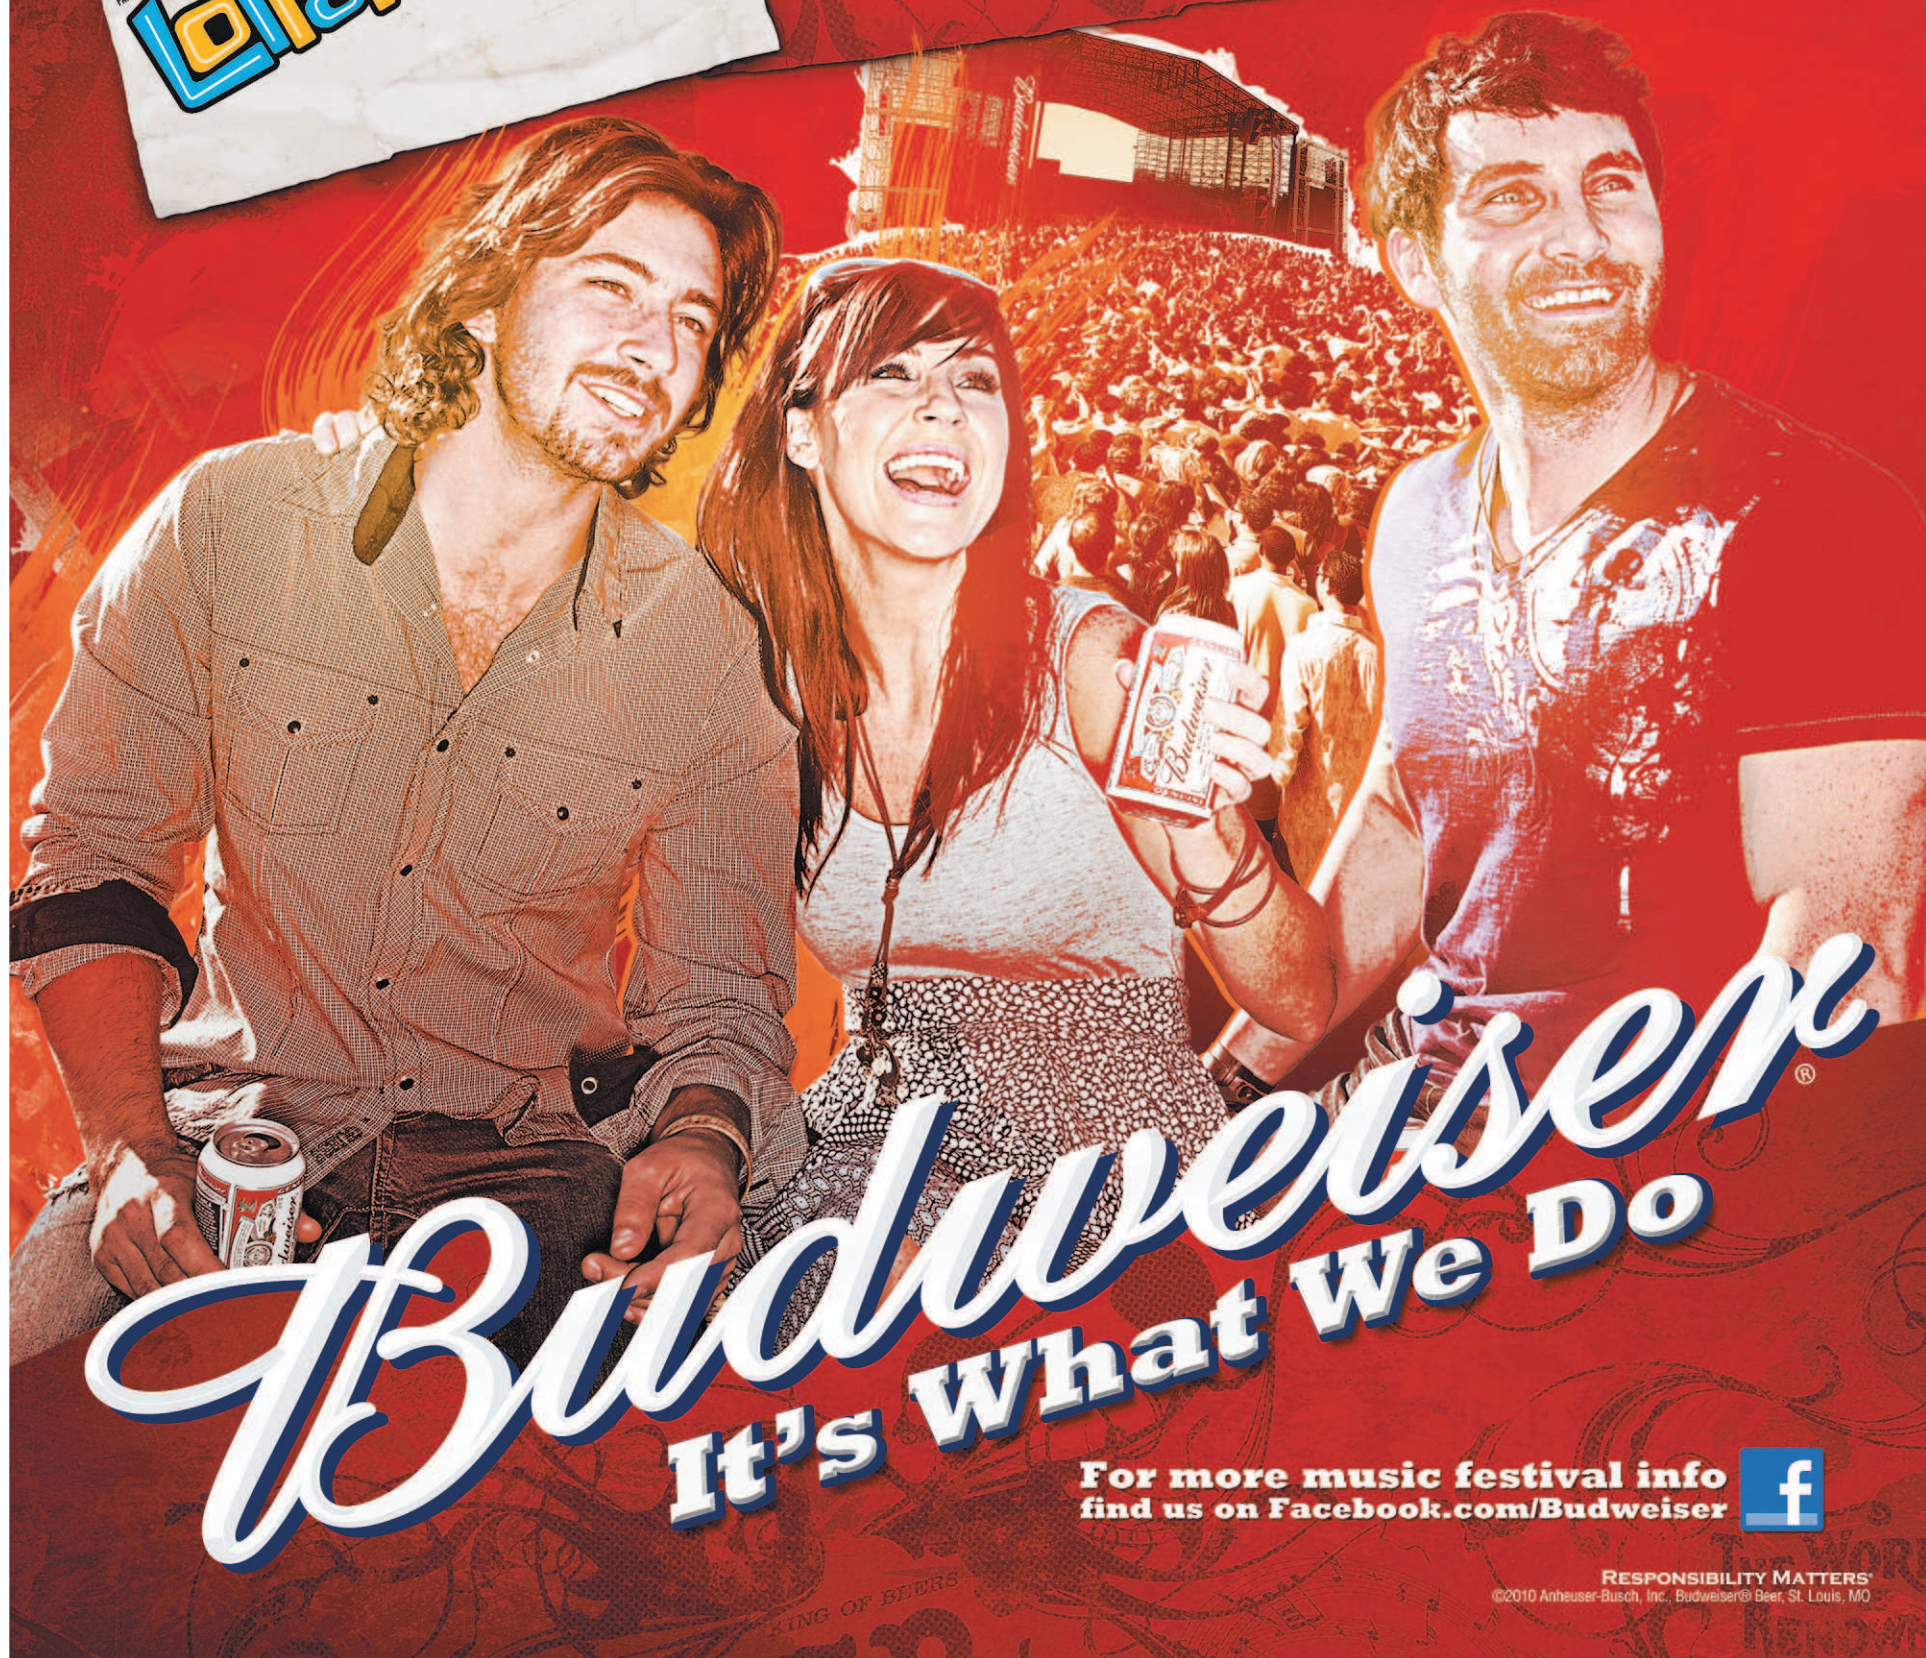

We could have shown a sexy shot of a burrito, but we know that the best burritos are made from perfectly prepared ingredients.

That's why our founder and Co-CEO Steve Ells (who also happens to be our chef), spent three years working with his team to develop a tortilla warmer that applies perfectly even pressure and heat to every tortilla. But that's nothing compared to the 16 years he's spent working to change the way people think about and eat fast food—sourcing sustainable ingredients, working with family farmers, searching for responsibly raised meat, and developing delicious recipes. It's all part of our quest to make the world a better place to eat, one perfectly warmed tortilla at a time.

Obama stumps in Chicago, visits South Side Ford plant

Chicago Tribune

President Obama sought to help U.S. Senate candidate Alexi Giannoulias on two fronts Thursday, raising much-needed campaign cash and reassuring voters that the Democrat is a trusted ally who can be counted on to help advance a progressive agenda.

The nearly $1 million fundraising event at the Palmer House Hilton highlighted a quick visit by Obama back home to Chicago that also included a tour of a South Side Ford plant and a 49th birthday dinner Wednesday night with friends including Oprah Winfrey.

Speaking Thursday afternoon to more than 400 donors, Obama and Giannoulias each sought to label November's midterm elections as a stark choice for the public between the economic policies of the previous Bush administration and efforts by the Democratic White House—admittedly not always popular—to reverse the recession.

THE BIRTHDAY DINNER

Where President Obama would dine for his 49th birthday had been the topic of much speculation. When he finally settled on Graham Elliot in River North, an eager crowd of onlookers formed almost immediately. The president spent more than three hours at his birthday dinner with several of his closest Chicago friends—University of Chicago Hospital Vice President Eric Whitaker, businessman Marty Nesbitt and Valerie Jarrett—as well as Oprah Winfrey and her friend Gayle King.

"Alexi is my friend. I know his character. I know how much he loves this country. I know how committed he is to public service for all the right reasons," the president said. "I appreciate his strong sense of advocacy for ordinary Americans. He's not doing this to help the lobbyists. He's not doing it to help special interests."

Although Obama and Giannoulias have a long history, their relationship had been strained over the Senate contest. In 2004, Giannoulias helped introduce Obama to the city's Greek community and donors when Obama won the U.S. Senate seat Giannoulias is now seeking. Two years later, Obama repaid the favor by endorsing Giannoulias for state treasurer over the Democratic organization-backed candidate. But last year, the White House was actively trying to recruit a sure-win Senate candidate despite Giannoulias' early entry into the contest.

Obama's fundraising appearance came at a critical time for Giannoulias. The treasurer's political viability had been questioned until his Republican Senate opponent, five-term North Shore U.S. Rep. Mark Kirk, stumbled badly when it came out that he had embellished and misstated his Naval Reserve record and personal history. Even with those problems, Kirk entered the final months of the campaign with nearly $4 million to spend while Giannoulias had about $1 million.

Earlier Thursday, Obama told auto workers at a South Side Ford plant that his bailout push helped save an "industry on the brink."

Obama also announced a $250 million import-export loan guarantee for Ford, which he said will help the company export hundreds of thousands of vehicles.

Controversial UIC professor set to retire

Chicago Tribune

William Ayers, an education professor and former Vietnam War-era radical, is planning to retire after more than 20 years at the University of Illinois at Chicago, a top school official confirmed Thursday.

The retirement will be official within the next couple of weeks, said UIC Education Dean Vicki Chou.

The school has faced its share of negative attention because of Ayers, a former member of the Weather Underground. The radical group was responsible for a number of bombings, including one in a Pentagon bathroom.

Ayers worked with Barack Obama before his presidency on education reform, and Ayers' ties became an issue for Obama in the 2008 presidential election.

Ayers' retirement had nothing to do with the negative press, Chou said, adding that the university will miss him.

"It will be more than a ripple because he's made a significant mark here," Chou said. "He's been really a very good colleague here. He has hundreds of students who really cherish that they've had the experience of being taught by him."

Ayers could not immediately be reached for comment.

Jerry Hobbs returned to his mother's home in Texas on Thursday. STACEY WESCOTT/TRIBUNE

Freed father speaks after 5 years in jail

Chicago Tribune

WICHITA FALLS, Texas Barely 24 hours after being released from Lake County Jail, where he was held for the murders of his young daughter and her friend, Jerry Hobbs was introspective and calm about his five-year ordeal.

Sitting in his mother's home Thursday, Hobbs displayed a gentle confidence that the truth will come out about the gruesome deaths.

"It's not about me. It's about my kid. It's about my baby, Laura," said Hobbs, who was driven to Texas by three members of his defense team.

They talked mostly about his case during the 14-hour drive home, he said. They delivered him to his mother at about 2 a.m. Thursday, meeting at a convenience store in Wichita Falls, Texas.

Hobbs was released Wednesday morning after prosecutors dropped charges accusing him of killing his 8-year-old daughter and her 9-year-old friend, Krystal Tobias. Hobbs was charged shortly after he confessed to stabbing the girls to death in a Zion park in May 2005.

Hobbs later recanted the confession, and authorities say DNA now has linked the killings to another man.

Hobbs said he was afraid to show anger, to scream his innocence from jail. He believes he was kept in isolation for at least half of his five years in jail because it would give prosecutors more reason to pronounce him guilty.

"The only thing they had gotten out of me was what they got out of a broken father," said Hobbs, who turns 40 on Aug. 15. "I just lost my child."

"She was my baby girl. She was my joy and my pride, and to find her the way I did, it would knock anybody to their knees."

Hobbs was asked if he deserved an apology from prosecutors, who still stop short of declaring him innocent and will only say they cannot prove their case beyond a reasonable doubt.

"They owe themselves an apology," he said, adding that the state's attorney's office has only opened itself up to criticism and further scrutiny. "It's not over yet. It's going to bring up lies from other cases."

Candidate Wyclef

1 PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti Wyclef Jean registered as a presidential contender Thursday, in a move into politics that generated an outburst of popular enthusiasm in his poor, earthquake-ravaged homeland.

"I would like to tell President Barack Obama that the United States has Obama and Haiti has Wyclef Jean," the three-time Grammy award-winner, who is 40, told cheering supporters in a downtown area of Port-au-Prince.

"This is the only president who will dance when Creole hip-hop is being played," Jean said in a speech after formally declaring his candidacy for the Nov. 28 presidential election.

He filed papers at the electoral council to run as a candidate for the Viv Ansanm (Live Together) political party, as excited young supporters clad in white T-shirts packed the surrounding streets, which still bore the scars of the devastating Jan. 12 earthquake.

The registration was required ahead of a Saturday filing deadline, and authorities now have until Aug. 17 to approve or reject his candidacy for the Nov. 28 ballot.

Jean, standing and waving to onlookers from the open sunroof of his sport utility vehicle, drew repeated chants of "Long Live Wyclef" and "President Jean" as his impromptu motorcade later wound its way through the densely packed streets of the capital.

One potential obstacle, according to Eduardo Gamarra, a political science professor at Florida International University, is Jean's lack of management skills in a coun-

Campbell testifies in war crimes trial

2 THE HAGUE, Netherlands Supermodel Naomi Campbell took the stand at the war crimes trial of Charles Taylor on Thursday as prosecutors tried to undermine a key element of the former Liberian president's defense.

Campbell told the special tribunal that she received a gift of "dirty-looking stones" that she assumed was from him.

Prosecutors are trying to prove that Taylor handled uncut diamonds—which do not glisten like polished ones—that fueled a brutal civil war in Sierra Leone when Taylor was president of neighboring Liberia.

The supermodel was handed the stones following a dinner hosted by Nelson Mandela in 1997, she said.

"When I was sleeping, I had a knock on my door. I opened the door and two men were there. They gave me a pouch and said, 'A gift for you.'"

Prop. 8 backers file for appeal

3 Attorneys supporting the voter-approved ban on same-sex marriage in California filed a notice of appeal in the case Thursday, one day after a federal judge ruled that the measure is unconstitutional. However, Chief U.S. District Judge Vaughn Walker granted a temporary stay along with his ruling, which stops his decision from taking immediate effect.

Pro eater gets probation

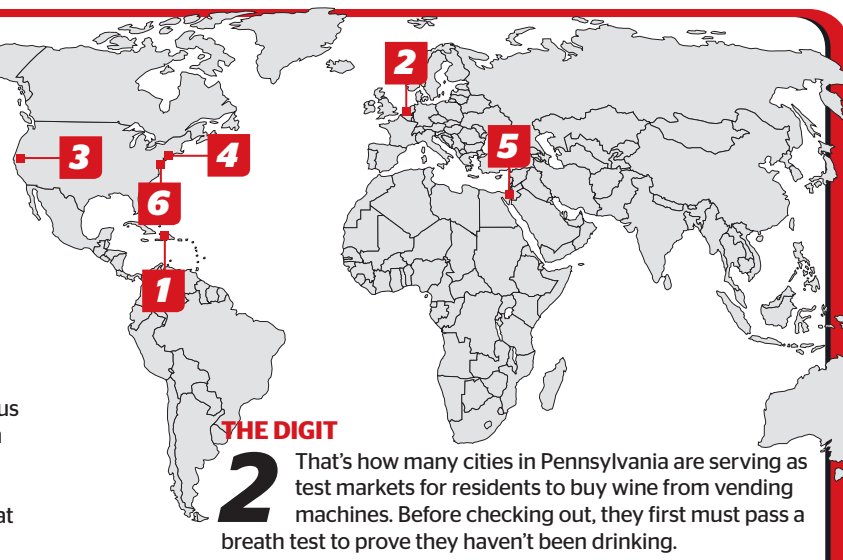

4 A Japanese former hot dog-eating champion was sentenced to six months of probation in a New York court Thursday. Takeru Kobayashi was charged with resisting arrest, trespassing, obstruction of governmental administration and disorderly conduct in connection with a disturbance at a famous July 4 hot dog eating contest on Coney Island.

BlackBerry fires back

5 BlackBerry maker Research In Motion on Thursday faced more demands to open its smartphones to government scrutiny as Lebanon joined India, Saudi Arabia and the UAE in raising concerns over security. Co-CEO Michael Lazaridis fought back in an interview with the Wall Street Journal, accusing foreign officials of trying to score political points.

Feds go after WikiLeaks

6 The U.S. Defense Department demanded Thursday that WikiLeaks return all classified military documents leaked to the website and expunge all copies from its records. "We want whatever documents they have returned to us and all copies" of them "expunged," Pentagon spokesman Geoff Morrell told reporters at a news briefing.

WHITE SOX 6, DETROIT 4 (11 INNINGS)

CLOSER SHAVE?

Offense bails out Jenks after blown save—but Ozzie isn't happy

Chicago Tribune

DETROIT Manager Ozzie Guillen was virtually speechless when asked Thursday if Bobby Jenks would continue to close games after surrendering a three-run home run to Detroit's Ryan Raburn in the ninth inning.

"You know what?" Guillen said before a long pause. "Ask Bobby what he wants to do. I don't know. I don't say we've lost confidence, but when your closer gives up one run [that's acceptable]."

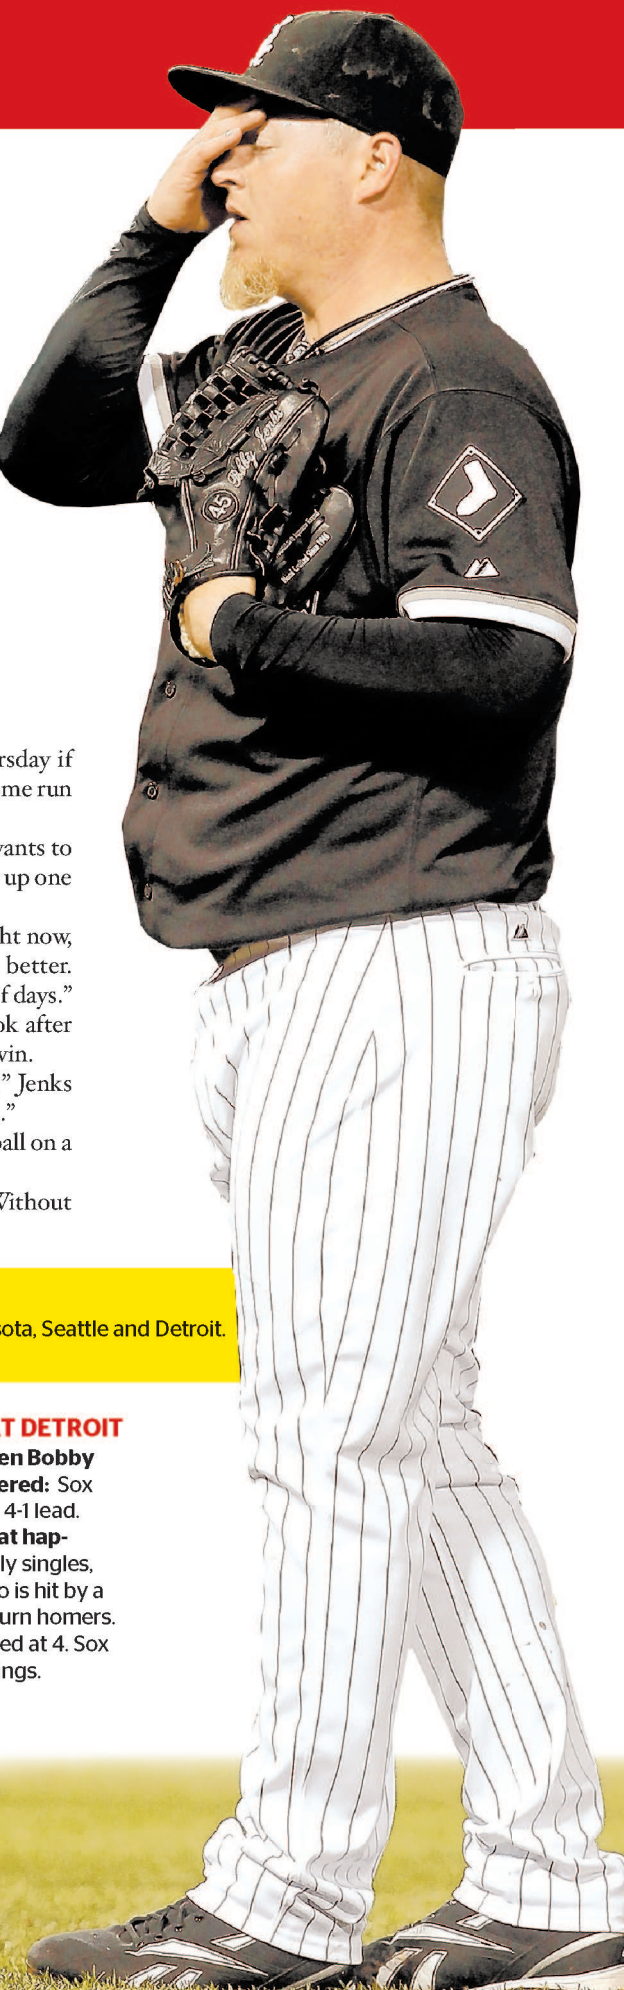

"The last three times he blew the game, he gave up three or four runs. Right now, I don't know yet. Like I keep saying, when Bobby's the closer, our bullpen is better. But right now, I've got to wait and see what I'm going to do for next couple of days."

And so it goes with the Sox and Jenks, who was momentarily off the hook after Mark Kotsay hit a two-run triple in the top of the 11th to give the Sox a 6-4 win.

"I know it's very cliché, but it's very important that we did get that win," Jenks said. "In the big picture, that inning means nothing as long as we got the win."

Jenks was more angry that he hit pinch hitter Ramon Santiago on a curveball on a 1-2 pitch that eventually led to Raburn's home run.

"That's the at-bat that ruined my day," Jenks said. "It's not the home run. Without that, it's still a one-run game. That's the frustrating part."

BOBBY BLOWS IT

Bobby Jenks has a 10.56 ERA in the second half while blowing leads at Minnesota, Seattle and Detroit. Here's a closer look.

JULY 18 AT MINNESOTA

When Bobby entered: Sox had a 6-3 lead.
What happened: Jenks walks Orlando Hudson, walks Joe Mauer, gives up RBI singles to Jason Kubel and Michael Cuddyer, then is replaced.

Result: Sox lose 7-6

JULY 21 AT SEATTLE

When Bobby entered: Sox had a 1-0 lead.
What happened: Jack Wilson singles, Chone Figgins singles, Franklin Gutierrez hits two-RBI single.

Result: Sox lose 2-1.

THURSDAY AT DETROIT

When Bobby entered: Sox had 4-1 lead.
What happened: Don Kelly singles, Ramon Santiago is hit by a pitch, Ryan Raburn homers.

Result: Game tied at 4. Sox win in extra innings.

NHL salary cap is crap

Sorry, Antti, you'll be missed.

It's easy to blame the Blackhawks on this one, and I do, but come on, man. Suck it up and play a few more years on the cheap, and then rake in the big dough. It's not that bad. Heck, you were driving a Zamboni last year.

But you didn't, and it's on to the Marty Turco era.

I have no idea who Marty Turco is, but I think Turco is a great name for a lawn mower. "Turco lawn mowers. Good lawn mowers for good lawn mowers." Look at that. I'm Don Draper. Without the looks. Or the suits. Or the women ... forget it.

I think I need to take a salary cap class—we all do. Maybe this is too pie-in-the-sky, but I think teams should be able to run salary cap deficits. You know, go over the cap in certain cases—like when you've just won a Stanley Cup. That seems fair.

I don't really like discussing hockey in August, so let's celebrate the final two months of the Lou Piniella era in style. Sorry, Lou—you weren't really unsuccessful, but your window was 2007-09, and it is now closed. These past few weeks, you have looked lost. I thought they were going to leave you in Arizona—in a home.

You know, I wouldn't blame you if you started leaving home games early and watching them over at Goose Island. I saw a 16-1 Brewers score this week. Wow. I see we're building for the future.

Also, Derrek Lee, please. You turned down a trade to the Angels. Mercy. You're on the Titanic, someone offers you a seat on a lifeboat, you take it! Now, please, get the bleep out of here.

As for the Sox, congratulations Kenny Williams, your work is done. You got the fifth starter, Edwin Jackson. The guy wins his first game here, and now we can focus up and win this thing like 2005. We even have the annual Ozzie mouth-off fiasco behind us.

Bring it home.

Bears are back

The Bears return to Soldier Field for practice on Friday night. Practice. We're talking about practice. redeyechicago.com/5on5

TOPIC	PHILLIP THOMPSON plthompson@tribune.com	TRACY SWARTZ twitter.com/tswartz	CHRIS SOSA chsosa@tribune.com	THAT GUY thatguy@poggled.com	SOXMAN redeyechicago.com/5on5
1 What will fans see when the Bears return to Soldier Field for practice Friday night?	A lot of sweating. A lot of cursing. And then on the field ...	A spinning top. Last season was just a dream! The first kick will be the wakeup call.	The same, grumpy Urlacher. Whatever you do, don't poke or feed him. Or even look at him.	For all the women who want to sleep with me this weekend, I'll be at Epic Saturday night for my b-day. Come by.	A true Mike Martz offense ... being discussed as players stretch and run.
2 Baltimore is the worst team in baseball, so why should the White Sox be scared to face them?	Their mascot is the Oriole. Never underestimate a bird team, it's a Cardinal rule.	Because it may come down to "The Wire."	The only thing to fear is if the city runs out of crab cakes.	They get Baltimore's Adam Jones confused with Adam "Pacman" Jones.	In 1988, the O-21 Orioles beat the White Sox. 1983 ALCS. Tito Landrum. Any questions?
3 What in Chicago sports are you sick of?	Backward personnel decisions. We trade or overpay for mediocrity and let our good players walk.	Brett Favre. I don't want whatever he's got because it won't quit.	All the hand-wringing over the Hawks. They'll be just fine, people.	All the vajajays.	"Caps" and robbers, aka the Blackhawks' offseason.
4 What's the sports equivalent of Lollapalooza?	The Cubs Convention—you're always going to get the same song and dance.	World Cup: An assault of the ears. Plus, Lady Gaga will probably show her vuvuzela.	The World Cup. Booze is flowing, shirts are optional and there's lots of noise.	WWE Smackdown with Greenpeace volunteers sponsored by Urban Outfitters.	Soxfest. What else?
5 What would happen if Tiger Woods loses the No. 1 world ranking this weekend?	At least for his dating prospects, it would be ho-rrific.	Nothing. He enjoys hitting bottom(s).	About a dozen women will instantly declare themselves available.	If he can't keep up, he can't be the No. 1 playa.	Elin Woods then loses the No. 1 divorce settlement.

Right now, a marriage is getting back on track.

Right now, you could love your job more than ever.

Harris
BRIAN CASSELLA/TRIBUNE FILE

BEARS D IS KEY

Bears expect a healthy Tommie Harris to give them a leg up this season

BOURBONNAIS The Bears are counting on being better on defense this season but they're not putting all the burden on Julius Peppers and a healthy Brian Urlacher to accomplish that task.

Fact is, the defense had moments of mediocrity before Urlacher was lost for the season in the opener last year. There is no question he should help a lot, especially in the base Cover-2, but he can't do it alone. As freakish as Peppers is, he isn't a one-man wrecking crew.

The newly incarnated Lovie Smith defense now under the direction of Rod Marinelli needs to be better across the board, starting up front.

One week into training camp, one reason for hope could be the biggest surprise at Olivet Nazarene. It's Tommie Harris, the defensive tackle who is entering his seventh season. The Bears completed their ninth practice Thursday and Harris hasn't missed one, something few would have predicted.

After all, Harris has been treated with kid gloves here in recent summers. He was shut down at the beginning of camp last year and finally, tired of being badgered by reporters, offered up that he had undergone offseason left knee surgery. This is the first time since entering 2006 that he hasn't had to rehabilitate from an offseason surgery.

"I would say my confidence is a lot higher than it was," Harris said. "Last year, I had no confidence. I didn't really know what to expect because I didn't practice and I didn't do anything, no minicamp, nothing."

FRIDAY'S PRACTICE

When: 7 p.m.

Where: Soldier Field

Gates open at 5 p.m. Family Night activities begin at 4 p.m. in the parking lot.

"Basically, it's getting back to knowing your keys, knowing what to do and breaking the game down. That is what I feel like I am able to do now. I can trust in my leg."

"He's in there, he's getting padded up every single day. In this game and in what we're trying to do, practice is everything," Marinelli said. "It's skill development. The key is lining up and getting the work, and he's doing that."

» The Big Ten has selected Indianapolis' Lucas Oil Stadium as the proposed site to host the inaugural Big Ten Championship Game in 2011. The league announced Thursday afternoon it will begin a 30-day period to negotiate a one-year agreement with Indiana Sports Corp and Lucas Oil Stadium.

» Illinois' men's hoops squad will play Texas as part of the Coaches vs. Cancer tournament Nov. 18 at Madison Square Garden. The Illini then would face either Pittsburgh or Maryland on Nov. 19.

» Notre Dame, officially, will mess with Texas. The Irish and Longhorns announced today a four-game series beginning in 2015, putting two of college football's winningest programs on the same field for the first time since the mid-1990s.

» Karen Sypher convicted of three counts of extortion, two counts of lying to the FBI and one count of retaliating against a witness in the Rick Pitino sex case.

30 ROCK!

Put these 30 bands atop your list of festival priorities

By Matt Pais

Three days. 130-plus acts. Yeah, good luck with that. Actually, you don't need luck when deciding what bands to prioritize at Lollapalooza 2010. These are the fest's 30 acts most worth seeing. Yes, there are some schedule conflicts you'll have to sort out, but too many bands in not enough time is a good problem to have. Get full event info at metromix.com, and head to the site all weekend for continually updated photos, reviews and lots more from Lolla.

The influential garage rockers reunite and suffer the fate of playing opposite Lady Gaga.

Lady Gaga

8 p.m. Fri. at Parkways Foundation stage

An unmissable spectacle no matter what you think of the music. What craziness will she unveil for arguably her biggest show ever?

Frightened Rabbit

5 p.m. Sun. at Sony bloggite stage

Take all of the heart and guts and hooks from the Scottish band's discs and multiply it by two on stage.

Raphael Saadiq

2 p.m. Fri. at Parkways Foundation stage

I like Sharon Jones and the Dap-Kings, but for a modern artist trying to recapture an old soul sound, Saadiq's my man.

Soundgarden

8 p.m. Sun. at Parkways Foundation stage

We'll forgive Chris Cornell for his embarrassing recent solo work and making the Rage guys go soft

LOLLA

When: 11:15 a.m. Fri.-Sun.
Where: Grant Park, 500 S. Columbus Drive
Tickets: $90-$215, 888-512-7469

Nneka

12:15 p.m. Sun. at Parkways Foundation stage

Half-Nigerian and half-German, this worldly R&B/soul singer dropped a doozy of a U.S. debut this year with "Concrete Jungle," which deserves its comparisons to "The Miseducation of Lauryn Hill."

Jukebox the Ghost

1:45 p.m. Fri. at BMI stage

Immensely catchy Philly band releases its second album, "Everything Under the Sun," Sept. 7.

in Audioslave if Soundgarden can recapture the power and charisma they used to have.

The National

7:15 p.m. Sun. at PlayStation stage

Not that they needed to, but the gloriously depressing indie band opens up and lets listeners in more than ever on the great new "High Violet."

Yeasayer

4 p.m. Sun. at Budweiser stage

Brooklynites transition from world music-influenced freak-out to shimmering '80s dance party thanks to the excellent new "Odd Blood."

The Black Keys

6 p.m. Fri. at Budweiser Stage

Just when you worried Dan Auerbach and Patrick Carney would get locked into the restrictions of the blues, they drop an album as appealingly strange as "Brothers."

Los Amigos Invisibles

1 p.m. Fri. at PlayStation stage

If a dance frenzy doesn't immediately break out for this Venezuelan party-funk act, check to see if the audience is glued to the ground.

Foxy Shazam

Noon Fri. at Sony bloggie stage

One of the fest's early-day bands most likely to blow up, thanks to the Cincinnati group's soaring, Queen-loving glam-pop and singer Eric Nally's outsized presence.

Spoon

6:15 p.m. Sat. at Budweiser stage

Britt Daniel and co. continue to polish their stripped down, tightly wound indie rock formula, which creates a small box for itself and then makes the most of the space.

Dragonette

1:45 p.m. Sat. at BMI stage

Last year you missed the chance to dance to rising electro-pop star La Roux. Don't miss this year's version.

The Antlers

12:15 p.m. Sun. at Budweiser stage

In 2009 Peter Silberman's band had us frozen at Pitchfork, in awe of the simultaneously haunting vocals and fuzzy guitars trembling beneath them.

The Soft Pack

12:30 p.m. Sat. at Budweiser stage

No, the notion of a tight, snarky indie-rock record hasn't gone out of style, and this San Diego quartet hits all the right notes on its self-titled debut.

Minus the Bear

3 p.m. Sun. at Adidas Mega stage

Seattle band defines how to make small, significant changes on each album while still giving the fans at least some of what they want.

Mavis Staples

2 p.m. Fri. at Budweiser stage

Hopefully the Chicago legend won't lose listeners by performing at the same time as Saadiq. But hopefully Saadiq won't lose them either. Ridiculous scheduling.

HEALTH

11:30 a.m. Sun. at Adidas Mega stage

The noise from this L.A. group may overwhelm you, but never in a bad way, and never so much that you'll want them to stop.

Stars

2:15 p.m. Sat. at Budweiser stage

The guy-girl vocal combo of Torquil Campbell and Amy Millan never fails to get us.

The Temper Trap

6:30 p.m. Sun. at Sony bloggie stage

The Australian band isn't letting a still-developing American fanbase minimize an epic, atmospheric sound that belongs in a stadium.

Mumford & Sons

3 p.m. Sun. at PlayStation stage

Anyone who enjoyed Local Natives at Pitchfork should check out this impressive foot-stomping, harmonizing folk-pop outfit, which, despite the name, isn't really a dude and his kids.

Freelance Whales

3 p.m. Sun. at BMI stage

The New York indie poppers have played in Chicago seemingly 9,000 times in the last year, but that doesn't make their endearing team-effort approach to harmonies and musicianship any less desirable.

The New Pornographers

4 p.m. Fri. at Budweiser stage

Subtract 10 points if, for whatever reason, Neko Case isn't there. She delivers the fire if the ultra-reliable pop band's songs ever blend together.

Skybox

12:30 p.m. Sat. at BMI stage

A Chicago pop band that's finally getting the attention it deserves, thanks to the recent "Morning After Cuts."

Kidz In The Hall

4:15 p.m. Fri. at Perry's stage

Gotta love all the Chicago references (Scottie Pippen, what up?) on the hip-hop duo's "Land of Make Believe," which takes what it likes from Outkast and Kanye West without ever feeling like a copycat.

Phoenix

8:30 p.m. Sat. at Budweiser stage

A year or two ago, this booking was unthinkable. After the French pop band took off behind singles like "1901" and "Lisztomania," it makes sense. Sort of.

Wild Beasts

1:15 p.m. Sat. at PlayStation stage

Last year's "Two Dancers" is beautiful and odd in endlessly intriguing ways, most notably because of Hayden Thorpe's stirring, almost otherworldly voice.

BBU

12:30 p.m. Fri. at Perry's stage

Local rappers deliver thumping beats and raw lyrical energy with nods to A Tribe Called Quest and Bad Brains.

Lolla: What you need to know

Lollapalooza 2010 will be bigger than ever, with more than 130 bands on eight stages and the capacity bumped up to 95,000 festival-goers a day from last year's 75,000.

The good news is that the festival now will have significantly more room for its stages. If you check out our Lolla map and schedule wrapped around today's RedEye, you will see two of the stages have been moved westward across Columbus Drive, and the total acreage assigned to the festival will increase to 115 from 80.

Here's what you need to know if you plan on going:

Lollapalooza

When: 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Friday-Sunday

Where: Grant Park

Tickets: $90 per day ($215 three-day pass) at lollapalooza.com

Ticket pickup

The Lollapalooza box office is north of the main entrance at South Michigan Avenue and East Van Buren Street. Three-day passes must be redeemed for wristbands, and tickets can be picked up at the box office from 10 a.m.-10 p.m. all three festival days.

DO'S AND DON'TS

The following items are allowed at Lollapalooza:

- » Blankets, sheets, towels
- » Umbrellas (only hand-held)
- » Soft-sided coolers
- » Baby strollers
- » Two factory-sealed water bottles (up to 1 liter each)
- » Empty camelback or other empty plastic container (i.e., Nalgene Bottles, Klean Kanteens, Sigg Bottles)
- » Binoculars
- » Non-professional recording equipment (point and shoot cameras, flip video cameras)

The following items are not allowed at Lollapalooza:

- » Weapons, including fireworks or explosives
- » Illegal or illicit substances
- » Large backpacks (framed, hiking backpacks)
- » Glass containers and metal aerosol cans, including sunscreen in aerosol cans.
- » Outside food or drinks (including alcohol), except two factory-sealed water bottles
- » Skateboards, scooters or personal motorized vehicles
- » Bicycles inside festival grounds (bike racks are available near box office).
- » Carts, tents and chairs
- » Hard-sided coolers
- » Pets (except service dogs)
- » Professional recording (photo, video, audio) equipment (no detachable zoom lenses, tripods or other commercial equipment)
- » Unauthorized/unlicensed vendors,
- » Unauthorized solicitations, handbills, sampling, give-aways.

Greenday..by process of elimination

@NaturallyMariam
Lady Gaga because its going to be more than just a concert, it will be a theatrical experience.

@edlerner
My vote is Green Day, but I'm more excited to see Soundgarden again. They broke up when I was in high school (ages ago)!

@joevw
arcade fire, new album kicks ass. gaga is art school britney spears green day forgot what real punk rock is over a decade ago

@millsks
the spectacle of @LadyGaga will be amazing but for the complete artistic experience? @Arcade Fire without a shred of doubt.

@Q101Chicago
None of the above. Soundgarden will trump all! BAM!

Ryan Swinford
I am going to lose my hipster credibility for saying this but I am thinking Lady Gaga. Huge festivals are designed for the headliners to be over the top and there is no one at this point who is more so than her.

Maria Madrigal
Lady Gaga.....hands down she knows how to put on a great show. dancing, costume changes, and more than likely lots of HOT dancers. Not to mention she has so many catching songs, no one can help but dance and sing-along to her songs.

Paige Worthy
Gaga is going to steal the show. Done and done.

Bruno Pieroni
As much as I'm looking forward to Sunday night, I bet Lady Gaga brings an actual, life-size arcade to the stage, and then literally sets it on fire. For the encore, she wears the heads of all members of Green Day as ear warmers.

Brittany Blackfield
Sure, Gaga might bring the bells and whistles but Arcade Fire is the real talent!

What would Gaga eat?

Musical talent and culinary prowess collide at Lolla's Chow Town

By M. Kathleen Pratt

It all started with local celeb chef Graham Elliot, who raised the bar for Lolla eats last year when he put up a lobster corn dog and truffle-parmesan popcorn to contend with festival standbys such as vegan burritos and sausage pizza. This year, in a new role as culinary director, Elliot has rallied even more notable Chicago chefs to show off their stuff at the Lolla food court, Chow Town.

Acts playing the fest don't need to hit up Chow Town for their meals, of course, but if they did, we like to think they'd be impressed with the upgrades. Here's where we'd send a handful of acts if hunger happens to hit between sound check and showtime.

Green Day = Rockit

22 W. Hubbard St. 312-645-6000
3700 N. Clark St. 773-645-4400

Saturday Lolla headliners Green Day already know where to grab a beer and fries when they're in town. The guys stopped by Billy Dec and co.'s bar and grill last summer during their 21st Century Breakdown tour after hitting up a Cubs game. They shared a few beers, played pool and downed some truffle fries. Because nothing says punk rock like truffle fries.

At Lolla: White bean hummus with pita and vegetables, Rockit truffle fries (left), bourbon barbecue pulled pork sandwich

Lady Gaga = Kuma's Corner

2900 W. Belmont Ave. 773-604-8769

We already know Gaga's down with Kuma's. When her Monster Ball tour rolled through town in January, she stopped by the legendary Avondale spot for a Judas Priest burger and a beer, tweeting "Just spent the morning at kuma's, judas priest burger and cheap beer, denim +leather, brought us all together." Lest you think the Kuma's experience is any different for her than for you and me, know this: She waited an hour and 45 minutes for her burger. Kuma's owner Mike Cain (who admits to being more of a Soundgarden guy himself) assures us no one—not even Gaga—gets to cut the line.

At Lolla: Judas Priest Burger, Iron Maiden Burger, Kuma Burger (minus the fried egg)

AFI = Bleeding Heart Bakery

1955 W. Belmont Ave. 773-327-6934

Bleeding Heart owner Michelle Garcia has baked for her share of rockers, but her famous clients lean punk and don't include any '10 Lolla acts. (Bleeding Heart has baked for the Dead Milkmen and Cock Sparrer, among others.)

We floated AFI as a match, since singer Davey Havok and bassist Hunter Burgan are vegan, and Garcia, whose Lolla menu is super vegan-friendly, concurred. If they're not on their way back to Rockit, however, Garcia says she'd also love to serve Green Day. "When I was a kid and I was a runaway, I stayed in their apartment in San Francisco," she says. She never got to meet the guys at the time—they were out on tour trying to make it big.

At Lolla: Organic fruit, yogurt and granola cup, cakeballs on a stick (vegan), ginger-molasses and green tea ice cream sandwiches (vegan)

Social Distortion = Blue 13

416 W. Ontario St.
312-787-1400

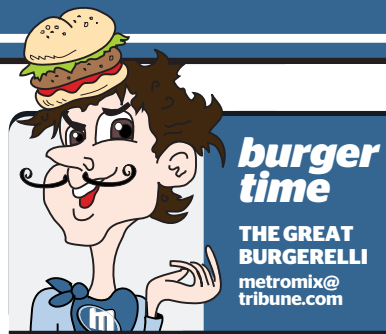

River North rock 'n' roll restaurant Blue 13 has served plenty of musicians with Chicago ties (members of Kill Hannah are regulars and Billy Corgan's been a guest), but the chef hasn't cooked for any of the acts playing Lolla. Yet. "Hopefully Mike Ness (right) will be knocking on our door pretty soon," says Blue 13 Marketing Director Stu Mitchell, who counts himself among several Social Distortion fans on staff. What would the Blue 13 team offer Ness if he walked up to their Chow Town booth? "You can't go wrong with the pork belly sliders," Mitchell says.

At Lolla: Asian pork belly sliders, cactus tacos, Greek-style chicken kabob

Urban Burger Bar

1578 N. Clybourn Ave. • 312-255-0055

The idea of an urban burger bar quite strikes my fancy, cosmopolitan fellow that I am. Sophisticated city burgers, created with ingredients from the Midwestern countryside? What delightful potential! As soon as I learned that such a place existed—indeed, it opened just a week ago—I trotted over to sample the goods.

The burger: A half-pound patty, made with hormone- and antibiotic-free Midwestern beef, and seasoned far better than most. Sadly, what might have been a superlative dining experience came undone when my "medium rare" burger came out identical to my companion's "medium" burger. Good chefs of Chicago, hear my plea: If the kitchen will not or cannot cook a burger to medium rare, say so, for goodness' sake!

The fixings: The specialty of the house is something called "stackers," which as I can best discern means "obscenely indulgent toppings in insane combinations." Take, for example, the Golden Ox ($11), a burger like any other. But then they have the audacity to top it with a split bratwurst, sauerkraut and swiss cheese! And then there's Les Urbain ($11), with brie, onion jam and Dijonaise. Oh la la! Tres decadent!

The bun: Buttery perfection from Labriola, toasted with just enough heft to handle over-the-top toppings. Bravo.

Everything else: I do so appreciate options! Mac and cheese, fried pickles, nine varieties of fries ... where to begin? Truffle fries ($5), kissed with truffle oil and served with truffle aioli on the side, were well-suited to my refined palate.

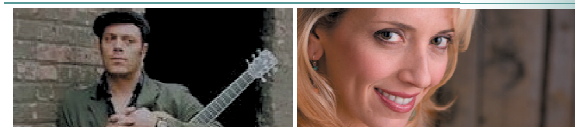

Bottom line: Urban Burger Bar has all the trappings of greatness. Cook those burgers as requested, and so it shall be.

Used Cars to be Sold to Public at $79*

Local Melrose Park Dealer must eliminate over $3,000,000 of pre-owned vehicles ONE DAY ONLY, Saturday, August 7, 2010

Melrose Park, IL Management of Al
Piemonte Ford has announced their plan to drastically reduce their used vehicle inventory to the public by means of a $79 Super Price Cutter Event this Saturday, August 7, 2010.

During this one-day event, every used vehicle will be sold for thousands below original price, including cars for $79. Why price them so low? According to Todd
O'Reilly, General Manager of Al Piemonte
Ford, "We have stock piled a larger selection of used vehicles. Al Piemonte
Ford has decided to offer these vehicles to the public for thousands below normal values before they go up in action. The Community has shown us great support throughout the years, and we are very grateful. We would rather give these deals to the public than unload these vehicles at auction."

A huge selection of over 500 cars, trucks, and sport utility vehicles will be available for this event. "We absolutely must reduce our used inventory at all costs, so customers can expect these vehicles to be sold for near or below wholesale," O'Reilly stated. "Cars that would sell for $3,000 to $12,000 will be thousands lower. There truly is a vehicle for everyone's budget here."

Vehicles will be on display at Al Piemonte
Ford, 2500 W. North Ave. in Melrose Park.
Special arrangements have been made for a record number of customers with event parking clearly marked.

Here's how the $79 Super Price Cutter Sales Event works: Anyone wanting to purchase a vehicle during this event needs to be registered. Registration begins at 9:00 a.m. At 10:45 a.m., all vehicles will be opened so that customers may inspect the vehicles. The retail price will be clearly posted on the windshield of each vehicle. When the $79

Super Cutter Sales Event begins at 11:00 a.m., the Price Cutter will cross out the retail price on each vehicle and replace it with the Super Sale Price. Price will be cut one time to the rock bottom price, including vehicles for $79. That's right you're reading this right. This day there would be cars AVAILABLE FOR JUST $79.00. The Super Price Cutter Sales
Event is for the public only – auto dealers and wholesalers are not permitted to participate.

"It's just that simple," Todd O'Reilly said.
"Choose the vehicle you're interested in,
be the first behind the wheel and you get the opportunity to purchase that vehicle at the Super Price Cutter Cost." Al Piemonte Ford will have a host of special finance and credit lenders on site. You can stop in to pre-register or call for more information. If you have had trouble obtaining auto financing in the past, don't count yourself out. If you bring in a current payroll stub and your drivers license or photo i.d., chances are we can arrange financing for you.

"This $79 Super Price Cutter Sales Event will be the biggest event we've ever had,"
the General Manager said. "I expect over 100 customers to leave this sale with great cars at great prices."

If you've been waiting for a great deal on a great used car or truck, then the wait is over! The $79 Super Price Cutter Sales Event on Saturday, August 7th will be the perfect opportunity to get a quality car or truck at substantial savings while Al Piemonte Ford drastically reduces their inventory.

The $79 Super Price Cutter Sales Event will be held at Al Piemonte Ford, 2500 W.
North Ave. in Melrose Park. Only one $79 vehicle per family, please. Questions can be directed to any sales professional at Al
Piemonte Ford (708) 345-9300.

*Plus tax, title, lic & doc fee. Select vehicles only. Example 1994 Nissan Sentra.

Will Ferrell (left) and Mark Wahlberg pair up in "The Other Guys." COLUMBIA PICTURES

Joke Squad

Ferrell and Wahlberg are packin' the funny as a pair of misfit cops in 'The Other Guys'

By Miki Turner

FOR REDEYE

LOS ANGELES Mark Wahlberg may have been fairly new to comedy when he signed on for "The Other Guys," but working with Will Ferrell was exactly what he wanted.

"Everybody wants to work with this guy," Wahlberg said during a recent news conference for the film, which opens Friday. "It's not really about the money, it's more about the experience. I've always wanted to do a comedy, and to get an opportunity to work with these guys was a dream come true. It's just really fun coming to work every day."

The film features Ferrell and Wahlberg as a pair of misfit NYPD cops who seemingly are serving a life-time sentence as desk jockeys while their colleagues get all the good cases. Terry Hoitz (Wahlberg) is being punished for having shot New York Yankees shortstop Derek Jeter in one of his multimillion-dollar legs. Alan Gamble (Ferrell) has issues with firearms and now is content to stare at his computer screen all day reciting meaningless statistics.

Frustrated by his personal and professional lives, Hoitz hopes the Ponzi scheme case he has stumbled upon will help him get his mojo back. Hilarity ensues when he has to ride shotgun in Gamble's Prius to solve the crime. Samuel L. Jackson, Michael Keaton, Dwayne Johnson and Eva Mendes co-star.

You would think a comedy veteran such as Ferrell would help out newbie Wahlberg on the set, but that wasn't the case.

"I feel like it's really more important to be cut-throat on set and not look out for each other," Ferrell said with a straight face. "It provides a certain tension and it makes for a horrible work environment but, boy, does it pop on screen."

At least Wahlberg had one up on Ferrell: Just as comedy is a departure for the former Calvin Klein model, playing a crime fighter isn't exactly Ferrell's forte.

Wahlberg said he enjoyed watching his co-star make a fool of himself during their high-octane action scenes.

"Exactly," he said. "I had a lot of fun making this movie. I certainly felt very comfortable when it came to anything cop-ish or action. But with all the other stuff, I basically just wanted to follow their lead."

According to Keaton, who plays Hoitz and Gamble's captain, Wahlberg kept pace with the veteran comedians on set.

"When you look at him, he's nice enough, but he looks as though he's going to kick my ass—and that doesn't feel very comfortable," Keaton said. "And he's ridiculously funny."

Two of Wahlberg's humorous scenes involved dancing. At one point, he busts some moves while directing speeding cars on a busy Manhattan street. In another scene, he showcases an almost flawless pirouette in an effort to win back his girlfriend.

"I thought it was easier than it was," Wahlberg said. "I trained with a guy for a while, and when it came down to it, I just couldn't get [it right]."

Adam McKay, Ferrell's writing/producing partner, scoffed at that notion, saying the father of three did learn the steps but had some trouble with the jumps and spins.

"Unless you're a world-class athlete, that's hard to do," McKay said. "He did a great job, and he really worked very hard at it."

MIKI TURNER IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

FAST-PAISED The Other Guys

!!! (PG-13)

Detective Hoitz (Mark Wahlberg) wants to be tough and take on real cases. He can't do that with a square partner like Gamble (Will Ferrell), who prefers to do paper-work around the office and tell everyone to have a great day. When their hero colleagues die and a money trail smells fishy, the two buffoons finally get to do some sniffing.

The verdict: You're not sick of Ferrell, you're sick of a particular version of Ferrell. With a little moderation in his behavior, he can be brilliant—no one vomits like him—and in "Guys," he makes a likable team with Wahlberg, a savvy comedian who hides absurdity within seriousness instead of the other way around. "The Other Guys" wears its good-natured silliness like a merit badge and delivers a buddy cop movie that's funnier way more often than it isn't.

Middle Men (R)
What it's about: Businessman changes the way adult entertainment is sold over the Internet. "Why jumble up a true story about big money and porn with so many senseless diversions? Just make a documentary."

The Wildest Dream: Conquest of Everest (PG)
What it's about: Conrad Anker retraces the 1924 Mount Everest climb of George Mallory to learn when and how the intrepid climber died. "This, not crud like 'A Christmas Carol,' is what IMAX is made for."

Fighting for forgiveness

Remember how "Before Sunset" updated us on what the characters of "Before Sunrise" were doing about a decade later? Well, writer-director Todd Solondz's "Wartime" does the same for his controversial 1998 comedy "Happiness," except the subject matter is 2,000 times darker and different actors play the same characters. Main topic: considering how—or whether—to forgive, forget or neither.
The verdict: Still examining the corners of human nature with a twisted snarl, Solondz is a master of creating an alternate universe that's disturbingly similar to our own. The weight of the world pushes on every scene, but no one experiences anything that someone hasn't experienced before. Guilt hovers large, particularly for convicted pedophile Bill (Ciaran Hinds) and for Joy (Shirley Henderson), who sees visions of the man (Paul Reubens) who committed suicide because of her. Even the forward-thinking characters experience a swinging pendulum of satisfaction and rage. The two-arch movie asks so many fascinating questions about the limits of forgiveness that it loses sight of any answers, yet its curiosity is exhilarating. Few filmmakers so fearlessly consider the big, sick comedy happening every day to everyone.

Softer side of Duvall

A house is burning. A man in silhouette jumps out. That's the mysterious opening of "Get Low," after which hard-ass hermit Felix Bush (Robert Duvall) decides to throw a funeral party for himself before he dies so he can hear the stories people tell about him. Hmm.
The verdict: Bill Murray turns in a hilarious, deceptively subtle performance as the funeral director helping Felix with the party. The enjoyment of the film, whose themes of forgiveness and regret are standard but convincing, comes from Duvall turning Felix into much more than a grump with a secret, even if "Get Low" leans too hard on that secret. He's a man who used to be different, used to talk more, but now achieves a lot with few words, answering the question "How are you?" simply by saying, "I am."

Dance moves sizzle but jerky 3-D fizzles

Geeky NYU engineering major Moose (Adam Sevani) rekindles his passion for dancing when he—no joke—accidentally gets into a dance battle with one of the Samurais, a top street dance crew. Moose then is recruited to join rival crew the Pirates, a band of misfit dancers who live and train in an impressively designed Brooklyn warehouse dubbed the Vault. Perhaps with Moose's help, the Pirates can win $100K at the city's biggest street dance competition and avoid the Vault being bought by Julien (Joe Slaughter), the nasty trust-fund baby who also happens to be leader of the Samurais.

The buzz: The bar isn't set very high for the third in any series, let alone a dance flick series. Can 3-D embellishments at least make the moves pop and lock?

The verdict: As with pretty much all dance movies, be prepared to snicker at laughable lines ("You're B-Fab. Born from a boom-box.") and a plotline that becomes increasingly far-fetched. It's a mediocre framework for the killer soundtrack, wicked choreography and impressive physical tricks that are the only reason anyone's seeing "Step Up 3D" anyway. Still, dazzling dancing isn't enough to distract from major lapses in story logic or the 3-D treatment's habit of making the dance moves look jerky. The visual effects generate more amusement from stuff like floating bubbles and balloons, items people don't exactly need 3-D movies to experience. LISA ARNETT, METROMIX

INCEPTION

Mselizabethash:

I've seen Inception X2 now & would see it again! High quality movies are a dime a dozen these days & Chris Nolan rocked this Supachicm2b: saw Inception. Overrated ... predictable ... boring. I WISH I had spent that money to watch Toy Story 3!

trekkieb47:

Inception was a visually stunning and complex action thriller that I had a blast watching. One of the best movies I've seen dsmoore: I saw Inception for the 2nd time last night and fell asleep during it. Sorry Mr. Nolan I wasn't as in to it this time.

ALSO OUT

Lenscapper1:

"Cats and Dogs: The Revenge Of Kitty Galore" Lots of bark! No real bite.

@vaughn chicago: "Dinner for Schmucks" is like comedic chinese food. It was good while you watched it, but you forgot it an hour later.

Sony PIIQ headphones
$15-$100 at sonystyle.com

The aesthetic of most Sony electronics has tended to be black, sleek and a bit on the understated side. That's why Sony's new line of earbuds and headphones stands out. PIIQs feature bright-hued, neon-heavy bodies and unique design elements. They range from the smaller Exhale earbuds ($15) and Qlasp earbuds ($25) to heftier, full-size Marqii headphones ($99).

TV
'Haven' 9 p.m. Friday, Syfy

Bad boy Duke Crocker (Eric Balfour) turns old and gray before our eyes in "Ball and Chain" as men in Haven begin to age rapidly, die and decompose at an extraordinary rate. Audrey (Emily Rose) and Nathan (Lucas Bryant) race the clock to save Duke, but Balfour hints they might not make it. "This event is going to have an enormous effect on the character and the show—and Duke's role in it. ... There is something else that happens that, whether Duke lives or dies, completely affects his legacy and his life. It was pretty shocking when we read it." I'm watching. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

'Prisoner'

Redwell (Producer: John Boy)
Listen at redeyechicago.com/kylesfiles

"Prisoner" put the hip-hop handcuffs on this week's track-off, leveraging gritty, urgent beats and a warbling soul sample to best Alex Ludovico's "The Medicine." Redwell went hard over a melancholy musical backdrop, unleashing analogies and metaphors that led one reader to announce that he "killed it." Vote for your track-off favorites every Monday.

THE WEEK IN CELEBRITY NEWS | BY EMILY ROSENBAUM MAKI, REDEYE

We've got them covered

SHOCKING

Girl, interrupted
Mary-Kate Olsen tells Marie Claire about growing up on the "Full House" set and what a lousy childhood she had. "I look at old photos of me, and I don't feel connected to them at all. ... I would never wish my upbringing on anyone." M.K. also calls herself and her sister, Ashley, "little monkey performers."

SILLY

A star is mimicked

Jennifer Aniston plays dress-up as Barbra Streisand in the new Harper's Bazaar. Aniston, it seems, adores Streisand. "I've loved her since I was a kid," she says. We all love Babs, and that is why I must protest this ridiculous photo shoot. Aniston just looks all wrong trying to channel Streisand, and having current stars pay homage to stars of yore in magazine spreads has grown tiresome.

SATISFYING

Face time

Julia Roberts is a practicing Hindu, but does not practice Botox. She tells Elle: "It's unfortunate that we live in such a panicked, dysmorphic society where women don't even give themselves a chance to see what they'll look like as older persons. ... Your face tells a story ... and it shouldn't be a story about your drive to the doctor's office." My face says I drank too much in college and should have used more sunscreen.

STRANGE

Curve appeal

Jessica Simpson is on the Lucky cover and inside she talks about "coming to terms" with her body. She stopped fighting her hourglass figure, she says, after realizing that "we all obsess over looking like the perfect Barbie type, and that's not always what's beautiful. It's about making peace with yourself." Great sentiment, so why did the Lucky editors feel the need to apparently Photoshop away her curves on the cover? Hmmm.

Anything for attention

Whoopi Goldberg denies hitting "Real Housewives of D.C." star Michaela Salahi, but she did direct some harsh language her way. After the contentious show with the newest "Housewives," including the alleged White House gate-crasher, "Michaela was very upset," Whoopi said on "The View" on Thursday. "Then I was told that she thought I hit her. So I went up to her and I told her that she knew I didn't hit her, and, yeah, you know how I said it—choice words." Salahi told "Access Hollywood" she never said Whoopi hit her.

Eva's sticky scene

An Eva Mendes sex tape? It's not what you think. In a funnyordie.com video, she's promoting sticky S.EX tape that "secures things extremely well." The tape will take care of the "nastiest, dirtiest" problems and is safe to use on "poles, pipes, rods, rims."

Pacey takes Mystic Falls

"Fringe" star Joshua Jackson is contemplating dropping in on "Vampire Diaries." Jackson, who worked with the "Diaries" co-creators on "Dawson's Creek," confirms to eonline.com that he spoke with them at Comic-Con about a guest role. "Maybe we'll take Pacey for a little light-hearted bloodsucking. We're all family here."

Lady on the town

Lady Gaga, in town to do Lolla, was spotted at Delilah's on Wednesday night. According to Pedro Hernandez, who was working the door, two black Lincoln Navigators pulled up to the Lincoln Park bar and Lady Gaga entered. Could it have been an impostor? Nicki Shamel, 23, of Rogers Park, tells RedEye it was Gaga who greeted fans at the bar. Her bodyguards tried to wave off fans, but "she comes over and says, 'I love you guys,'" Shamel said. Before leaving Delilah's, she told the group, "Don't drink and drive; be safe."

'Idol' producer talks return

The returning "American Idol" producer tells USA Today he's "back because it was tough being away." Nigel Lythgoe also says: "It was tough to watch things going down. I was never happy with the four judges, and I was watching the chemistry sort of be lost." As for the rumors about Jennifer Lopez joining the judging panel, he says he's a fan. "She knows the business and is tough. She'll be honest about it."

THE DIGIT

100-plus

That's the number of pounds John Goodman has shed since he stopped drinking, hired a health coach, cut sugar from his diet and started working out, according to people.com.
